

Hey Guys,

We've had a bit of bad weather lately, so I thought I'd just outline what we do.

Generally, unless its really pouring, we show up. In a light rain, we can hang out under the covered picnic tables nearby. If it gets too muddy, we can train on the walkway near the tables. The nice thing about rainy day training is that numbers are generally low, and Sifu spends a little more personal time with everybody, there are always a few little tidbits offered up that you don't normally come across.

So, if you ask the question, is it worth turning up on a rainy day, you have to balance the inconvenience of the weather against the opportunity for a little more intimate time with Sifu and the older brothers.

If in doubt, you can always call me. 0407 298 075
